All Jurors Summoned for Last Three Weeks of Court Ordered Discharged by Judge Reppert

Counsel For Commonwealth in Liquor Cases Charges Irregularities.

CLAIMS LIST "DOCTORED"

Names Changed from One Week to Another, Others Added, Still Others Dropped, Is Assertion of Counsel for Prosecution; Brings Court to Halt.

On motion of counsel for the commonwealth in the liquor cases Judge E. H. Reppert this afternoon ordered that all persons called for jury duty this week and the two weeks following be discharged.

The charge was made by counsel for the commonwealth that the list had been "doctored." It was claimed some names had been stricken from the list, others added and others shifted from one week to another, at the instance of liquor men.

The court held this constituted irregularities and ordered that all on the list be paid off and sent home.

The motion was made at the opening of the week's session of court and it immediately caused a halt in the plans to call a jury for the trial of Mrs. Grace E. Hellen, proprietress, and others connected with the Duquesne hotel, Uniontown.

Whether another panel will be called or the cases held over until the June term of court was not known this afternoon.

The discharge of the jurors brings to a halt all cases called for this term of court. That of George L. Monaghan, charged with the theft of furs from the Wright-Metzler store, was on the list for today.

In his argument Thomas H. Hudson, private counsel for the commonwealth, said that the name of Joseph J. Graham had been changed from the fourth week to the first week of the March term of court and that that of Edward G. Allison had been changed from the sixth week to the fourth week. The name of John Wallace of Connellsville he said had been moved up from the sixth to the fifth week.

There were 101 men called for the fourth week he argued and the names of James Piper and Liz Chamberlin were dropped altogether leaving 99. Later the name of E. G. Allison was substituted. He called attention to the fact that in making substitutions the names were not selected from the jurors of the first or last part of the term but from the middle.

"Why was Joe Graham taken from the fourth and placed in the first week?" asked the attorney.

"So he could get on the liquor cases," he declared, answering his own question. "What right has a jury clerk to change one single name from one week to another or to drop any name selected by the court or jury commissioners?" was his question.

It is said to be the first time in the history of Fayette county that an entire panel of jurors for three weeks has been discharged by a judge because of alleged irregularities.

Motorists Fired Upon and Stoned Near Iron Bridge

A party of automobilists going to Mount Pleasant Saturday night reported some one was firing a rifle and throwing stones at passing machines near Iron bridge. A local man said his machine was stopped just before he started down the grade to Iron Bridge and a party of young men who had been riding in a Ford showed him a bullet hole in the cover.

The motorists were greatly excited and said someone along the hillside had fired. The party was from Mount Pleasant and feared to attempt to return. Another car passing after they said was the target of a big stone. No one was hurt.

West Penn Removes Nuisance.

The West Penn Railways company has repaired the brick paving between its tracks at both east and west approaches to the Youghiogheny bridge. The bricks between the rails were raised and now allow water which accumulated there during a rain to drain off. Previously puddles formed and passing vehicles splashed it over the clothes of pedestrians.

FREEZE TONIGHT MAY MEAN RUIN OF FRUIT PROSPECTS

In full bloom a month ahead of time peach, cherry and other fruit blossoms are in great danger of being entirely destroyed. The weather forecast for tonight promises snow and temperature below freezing.

The warm sun of the past week and the mild nights have brought the trees on rapidly and it is not yet the end of March. The prospect is anything but encouraging.

The highest mark in at least five years for March 27 was reached yesterday when the mercury touched 86 degrees. The heat seemed even more intense but the thousands who desired to join the Easter throng were delighted.

The weather man did not succeed in holding off the bad weather much longer than was necessary, however. The temperature fell back to about 50 degrees in the night and dropped again in the early morning, accompanied by a chilly rain. [illegible] there was a difference of 40 degrees between the maximum yesterday and today, the official thermometer recording 46 degrees.

250 ARE RECEIVED INTO CHURCHES OF CITY ON EASTER

Weather of Mid-Summer Warmth Results in Unusually Large Attendance

TREASURIES ARE ENRICHED

Upwards of 250 persons were received into the churches of Connellsville Easter Sunday. In every church the attendance was unusually large. In some it was a record breaker. The beautiful summer-like weather utterly at variance with the government forecast of showers and thunderstorms resulted in a great outpouring of churchgoers.

At the Christian church the pastor, Rev. Francis L. Scott, was greeted by an audience in the morning that filled every part of the church connecting with the auditorium. The communion was sent to [illegible] in the [illegible]. Again in the evening the edifice was packed for the cantata. There were [illegible] at the Sunday school. Thirty-seven persons were received into the church membership.

[illegible] persons were received into the First Presbyterian church by [illegible] Frohlich. There were [illegible] baptism. The Sunday school attendance was [illegible]. Communion took up the worship hour at the morning service. The evening program was entirely musical.

Rev. J. Earle Edwards delivered his [illegible] sermons morning and evening at the First Baptist church and left at midnight for New Jersey to begin his work as promotion [illegible] for the Baptist organization of that state. The retiring pastor baptized [illegible] at the morning service. There were [illegible] in the Sunday school. By arrangement made during the day the [illegible] week prayer meeting was called off and the members will join with the Methodist Protestant church which is holding a revival.

The day at the Methodist Protestant church was evangelistic in character with Evangelist S. D. Few in charge. There were five on [illegible] at the evening service. The revival [illegible] Friday evening [illegible] to the church roll. Four children were baptized at the morning service. There were 300 at Sunday school. The revival will be continued all this week including tonight.

Forty-five adults were received into the First Methodist Episcopal church by Rev. Dr. Bennett W. Hutchinson while [illegible] appeared in a probationary class for instruction. The day marked the close of the revival. Former West Virginians in the congregation admirers of Miss [illegible] Ridley, the song evangelist, presented her at the morning service with a large bouquet. The Easter cantata was well received. There were [illegible] at Sunday school. A final appeal by the pastor and the singing of the Awakening Chorus closed the day and the revival.

The will offering of $1,718.26 toward the new church building fund featured the day at the United Brethren church at which Rev. G. S. Shaw, superintendent of the [illegible] conference and son of the pastor, Rev. J. [illegible] Shaw, was the speaker morning and evening. There were seven confessions in the morning and [illegible] persons were baptized. The Sunday school attendance was 412. The need of a new and larger church was emphasized in the morning when many were unable to gain admittance.

During the day in Trinity Lutheran church $1,000 was paid in pledges on the church building fund, of which $475 was received at the Sunday school. Fifty-seven persons were received into the church by the pastor, Rev. D. William [illegible]. The attendance at the Sunday school was 576, the largest at any church in the city. There were very large audiences morning and evening.

A very large audience greeted Rev. George W. [illegible] Buckner on his return to the pulpit of the First Christian church after an absence of six weeks on account of illness. The pastor made a brief address and then was taken back to his home by his physician. A special musical program had been arranged by Jones Chillsworth, director of music. Two persons were received into membership. There was no evening service.

The quarter of the Salvation Army were filled to capacity for the services there. In the evening the children presented a program under the leadership of Mrs. Mazie Scott. Tonight the persons engaged in the Red and Blue contest for members of the Sunday school will be guests of the Blues, the losers. The contest resulted in the Reds securing 49 new members and the

Communist Uprising In German Territory Policed by Americans

Troops Are Hurried to the Scene With Hope of Restoring Order.

ARTILLERY USED AT HALLE

Government Forces Turns Guns on Rebels Gathered on Hills Overlooking City and Causes Them to Disperse; Regulars Hold Sangerhausen.

By Associated Press.

COBLENZ, March 28.—A Communist uprising occurred this morning in the American bridgehead area at Montabaur.

A riot call was answered by the provost marshal and American military police were dispatched to restore order.

HALLE, Germany, March 28.—Federal artillery was taking a prominent part today in dealing with the insurgent Communists in this disturbed section of Prussian Saxony. The artillery shelled the Communists on the hills to the west of Eisleben dispersing them. After a brief engagement the town of Sangerhausen was occupied by federal forces which now control that place.

HALLE, Germany, March 28.—Communists last night attacked the building of the Hallesche Zeitung, the pan-German organ here. A hand grenade was hurled into the building wounding two of its occupants.

Battalions of "green police" today were in control of a majority of the troubled sections, cities from which a large percentage of the male population had fled either in fear of arrest or in an effort to join their fugitive comrades to reorganize for another attack which in some quarters is considered probable on Tuesday after the Easter holiday. Workmen were arrested at Halle today with a quantity of dynamite in their possession with which they were attempting to blow up the police presidium.

WHY CHILLY WEATHER BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says Skin Pores Are Closed and Uric Acid Remains In Blood.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age sex color or rank It not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all drink lots of pure water

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood, It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine the pores of the skin are also a means of closing the blood of this impurity In damp and chilly old weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness soreness and pain called rheumatism

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts put a table spoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action thus ridding the blood of these impurities

Jad Salts is inexpensive harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism —Adv

OLD FRIENDS MEET AT DICKERSON RUN AFTER 30 YEARS

DICKERSON RUN March 28— John Williams, a former Pennsylvania railroad yardmaster at Youngwood but now a successful coal operator in Pittsburg surprised James Beatty correspondent of The Courier Friday evening by paying him a long delayed visit This was their first meeting in 30 years

Mr Williams and Mr Beatty were born and reared at Mill Run and both left that little mountain village at about the same time Mr Williams entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad company remaining with that company until the beginning of the war with Germany when he engaged in the coal business He is now operating a mine at Elizabeth also at Masontown and has been very successful Mr Beatty entered the service of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad and is still in the employ of that company

Mr Williams and Mr Beatty attended school at Mill Run and were always found together Two of the men who instructed them in the little old school house which is still standing as one of the old landmarks of Mill Run are still living They are Charles H Brooks now of Normalville and F S Showalter of Uniontown

Mr Williams and Mr Beatty spent the evening going over their school day experiences recalling the old time spelling bees at Mill Run Mason school and others in the mountain district Commenting on the present mild winter the two churned called snows of 40 years ago which were so deep that all the fences were covered and froze so hard that sledding parties were enabled to leave the public road and take short cuts at will

Included in the little party Friday evening was D R Rosser stable boss for W J Rainey at Vanderbilt who was also a schoolmate of the two men and a brother in law of Mr Williams

FROCK WITH HABIT SKIRT

This frock socks distinction in a seamless skirt that wraps about in graceful fashion. Wide braid—which is so much in favor this year for trimming—bands sleeves and edges of the frock. There is a clever little vest of Vynilla cloth, white, cut with round neck and finished with a narrow, standing collar that ends in a carelessly knotted tie at the side.

WEDDINGS AND DANCES FEATURE EASTER WEEK.

The Lenten season closing on Easter Sunday social activities will be revived and Easter week will be devoted to weddings, dances and other social gatherings.

Tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, Miss Hazel Kuhns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kuhns of East Connellsville, and John Bosley, son of S. C. Bosley, also of East Connellsville, will be solemnized in the parsonage of the South Connellsville Evangelical church, with Rev. J. O. Bishop, the pastor, officiating. The ring service will be used. Miss Kuhns was a cashier at the Wright-Metzler lunch counter and has a wide circle of friends. Mr. Bosley is associated in the coal business with his father. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple will leave on a wedding trip to the east and on their return will be at home at Poplar Grove.

The marriage of Miss Leona Featherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Featherman of South Cottage avenue, and George Nathanson of Elmira, N. Y., will be solemnized in the Elks home in East Crawford avenue tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. Rev. Hershon of Uniontown, will officiate.

Society is interested in the annual Easter reception and dance of the Unity Fraternity to be held tomorrow night in the state armory. The large auditorium will be beautifully decorated for the occasion, Easter appointments predominating. Many invitations have been issued and a large number of guests, including the school set home for the Easter vacation, will attend.

Tuesday night Mrs. Melvin Clasper will entertain the S. T. L. club at her home in South Seventh street, West Side.

Wednesday morning the marriage of Miss Catherine Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Burns of Adelaide, and John Boylen, son of John Boylen, Sr., of Adelaide will take place in the Immaculate Conception church.

Thursday morning the marriage of Miss Minnie LaPorte, of Tenth street, West Side, and Frank Cortelli, of Trotter, will be solemnized in St. Rita's Italian Catholic church in the West Side. Rev. Henry DeVivo will officiate. The attendants are Miss Florence Bartley and James LaPorte.

Beautiful Easter appointments will predominate at the annual Easter dance of the Connellsville Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star to be held Thursday night in the state armory. The committee in charge is making extensive arrangements for the dance and a very delightful time is anticipated. Many guests, including a number from out of town, will attend.

Friday night Miss Florence Bartley will give a dance in Maddas hall, West Side, in honor of Miss Minnie LaPorte. About 100 guests will attend.

IMPORTANT TO EVERY MOTHER

Do you know the best energy food for children?

GROWING children need a great deal more energy food than adults, for they use up so much more energy. Every mother and father knows this.

The food element that furnishes the greatest amount of energy—is Dextrose. Most of the food you eat—such as bread, starchy vegetables, and all forms of sugar—has to be changed into Dextrose before your system can use it.

Karo, the Great American Syrup, contains a very large percentage of dextrose. This gives Karo its wonderful energy-producing value, and is what makes it so nourishing and wholesome for children—as well as for grown people.

Give the children all the Karo their system needs—on cakes or bread, or for making delicious, pure home-made candy.

Your Protection

Do not be deceived by cans containing syrup that might look like Karo. The name "Karo" is on every can of original Karo—look for it, and be assured of full weight cans and highest quality.

BLUE Karo

The standard table syrup. Also for cooking, baking and candy making. Light brown color, delicious flavor—a heavy-bodied syrup.

RED Karo

The ideal Syrup for every use—for cooking, baking, candy making and preserving. Because of its honey-like appearance many prefer it as a spread for cakes, biscuits, breads.

GREEN Karo

Flavored with highest grade cane maple sugar. Very moderate in price—absolutely pure. The makers of Karo are the world's largest users of the highest grade maple sugar—over a thousand tons used annually.

Mrs. McCumber Avoided a Serious Operation by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Time

Georgetown, Ill.—"After my first baby was born I suffered so with my left side that I could not walk across the floor unless I was all humped over, holding to my side. I doctored with several doctors but found no relief and they said I would have to have an operation. My mother insisted on my taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. Now I can do all my own work and it is the Vegetable Compound that has saved me from an operation. I cannot praise your medicine too highly and I tell all of my friends and neighbors what the Compound did for me."—Mrs. MARGARET MCCUMBER, 27 S. Frazier St., Georgetown, Illinois.

Mrs. McCumber is one of the unnumbered thousands of housewives who struggle to keep about their daily tasks, while suffering from ailments peculiar to women with backache, sideaches, headaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness,—and if every such woman should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would get well.

AUTOMOBILES PREFERRED TO HOMES.

While in a discussion of the house shortage problem it is necessary to give consideration to the various plans that have been proposed to provide relief it is perhaps not out of place to give attention to one of the causes of the existing situation which has not yet been referred to except in an indirect way

It has been more or less vaguely hinted that the tendencies of people to extravagant expenditures has been instrumental in stopping the progress of home building industry, but comparatively little has been said or done to single out a specific item of money spending as one of the prime causes

The necessity for directing all the energies and resources of the people and the country to winning the war was the direct cause of the suspension of building activity The inflation of prices for both material and labor which is just as much a part of the cost of the war as munitions pay of the soldiers and their sustenance was also a part, prevented a resumption of building after the war ended The extremely slow progress of a readjustment to peace time conditions since the signing of the Armistice has operated to still further defer a revival of housing projects.

Important and controlling as these factors have been in retarding a resumption of home building on anything like the pre-war scale there is another cause to which comparatively little attention has been given by those who have been more occupied in devising some more or less artificial means of stimulating building activity than they have been striving to ascertain if there are causes for the cessation other than the high prices of labor and material

Only casually has it been pointed out that the freedom with which the people spend money is one of the reasons why fewer homes are being built If more careful analysis be made of the tendencies of this habit will it not be possible to identify some particular object of expenditure as contributing in a very material way to the home shortage problem?

When taking a census of the people within the circle of our acquaintance who are without homes of their own and so far as known, are making no plans to acquire or build them, but who are owners of automobiles, do we not have rather concrete proof that the almost complete stoppage of home building is due, at least in part to the high cost of something other than labor and building materials?

Before the desire to own an automobile became the ruling passion in the lives of many people they practiced economy and frugality with a view of some day having means to buy or build their own home Yielding to the new desire, the money that had been saved, or was in process of being saved, has in scores and scores of instances been invested in automobiles instead of homes To the extent to which saving has been diverted from the original purpose has the number of home builders been reduced And, further, the potential capacity of communities to finance home building projects has been proportionately lessened

Not only have the savings of a large number of those who were prospective home builders been applied to another purpose but in having acquired automobiles the new burden of maintenance and upkeep, and new expenses incidental to the possession and use of a car, has been laid upon the purchasers This is of such weight that in all but a few instances it is not likely both automobile and home building projects can be carried on at the same time This observation does not, of course, apply to persons circumstanced to buy automobiles without retarding their home building plans, but such persons are few in number compared with those who need homes and have no means except their savings to provide them If this group of citizens continue to give preference to automobiles it will very probably mean that the growth of home building once it gets under way again will not attain proportions commensurate with the needs

Automobile owning gives great delight and brings much cheer into the lives of the owners, but so long as cars are preferred to homes just so long will the more substantial enjoyment of home owning be lacking for a very large number of persons

License or No License?

Philadelphia Ledger

For more than a year now the anomalous situation has presented itself of the issue of licenses by the courts for the sale of spirituous vinous and malt liquors without any mention therein of the restriction of alcoholic content established by federal law Many hundreds of dealers all over the state have found it to their interest to pay the old high license for the privilege of selling the half of one per cent beverages although nobody believes there is money enough in that trade to enable the said dealers to make both ends meet Indeed the moral conviction is deep seated that the licenses have been used in many many instances as a cover for the dispensing of liquors forbidden by the Volstead act

Fully aware of this condition of affairs the uncompromising defenders of the amendment and advocates of its most rigid enforcement have clamored for the repeal of the Pennsylvania license law and the substitution of regulations following the lines of the existing federal law but made more drastic The division of opinion in the Legislature, somewhat misleadingly designated by the use of the terms "wet" and "dry" has centered largely on the issue of the repeal or the amendment of the Brooks high license law Strict logic is on the side of the repealers but their extreme demands in the direction of strict enforcement have unified the wet forces bent on a 'liberal' administration of the prohibitory laws, and alienated some of the moderate-thinking members who believe that too rigid provisions would defeat their own ends because in advance of public opinion on the subject

It was through a combination of these two influences that the defeat of the so-called Martin bill indorsed by the anti-saloon forces was brought about But new efforts will be made to bring about an agreement along less uncompromising lines either by the amendment instead of the repeal of the Brooks license law or by the creation of enforcement machinery more in harmony with the state of public opinion Governor Sproul has declared his preference for the former and the contention of those who agree with him is that the retention of some form of license for the sale even of the beverages of low alcoholic content is necessary to facilitate police supervision of the traffic and that without a license requirement the sale would be so widespread and uncontrolled that illegal sales would grow beyond control Whether this view will prevail at Harrisburg depends in great measure upon the wording of the proposed substitute

Genuine friends of prohibition are naturally disturbed to find that the "wets" are to be found supporting the license end of the argument and the extremists will use this as a weapon against amendment The line up in the Legislature, however would seem to indicate that a middle ground will be taken no other having the least chance of winning the required support So we shall expect to see the liquor legislation if any is enacted at all take the form of a limited licensing system with provision for state and local cooperation with the federal authorities in the administration of the prohibitory laws—this however should there be no deadlock between the extreme drys on the one hand and the radical wets on the other

Tax System a Drag On Prosperity

By Roger W Babson

People little realize what the income and other federal taxes are doing to kill prosperity and enterprise

The bank clearings building permits and other figures now coming out for the two weeks preceding March 15 when the federal tax statements were due indicate that the time which 5 000 000 people have given simply to preparing these reports resulted in a loss of about $1 000 000 000 in sales $350 000 000 in manufacturing and $500 000 000 in other lines If we add to these figures the time of bookkeepers accountants government tax officials, collectors and inspectors whose work is wholly unproductive and who—from the economist's point of view—are simply parasites on the country we have far greater losses

But some say "I think of the $4 000 000 000 which the government will be able to spend this year" This is where we are all being fooled If the making out of these returns and the collecting of the money did not cost one cent the country would not be any better off The whole process is simply the "robbing of Peter to pay Paul" and the 'robbing' costs the American people about $2 000 000 000 a year in actual cash Add to this the psychological effect upon men of enterprise (I refer to the retarding, the dampening effect of this whole tax business on the ambitions and efforts of the men who pay and promote great enterprises—the men who really make prosperity) and the losses above indicated must be multiplied many fold.

I believe in an income tax and know that Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams and his entire staff have handled a most difficult problem in a most efficient and impartial manner The American people, however should not fool themselves as to what a hindrance our present tax system is on prosperity

Just like my fellow man—
And overlooked the meal they [illegible]
This sorry [illegible] to say
[illegible]
The ones that got away

I've caught full many a joy in life
My string of smiles is long
I've had my share of [illegible] fat
And happiness and song
The years have kindly dealt with me
And oft have let me play
But still I've thought I should have caught

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"PEACEFUL VALLEY"—Presenting Charles Ray in his initial First National picture, opened today for a three-day attraction at this theatre. As Hosih Howe, a struggling sunny-hearted farmer lad with a widowed mother and young sister to support, Charles Ray is declared to have delineated a screen characterization that will bid fair to rank as one of the outstanding artistic accomplishments of the silent drama. Ward Andrews, a sleek city individual, is responsible for the pathetic pucb which enters this otherwise bright and humorous story. He obtains an option on the Howe farm, when he realizes that its bitter tasting water will some day make the owner rich. Smitten with pretty little Martha Howe, he easily deludes her into running off with him. Meantime Hosih has become greatly taken with Virginia, beautiful daughter of Dr. Rand, stopping at the summer hotel. But Hosiah's romantic hopes are given a severe setback when he learns of the disappearance of his idolized sister in company with a strange man with a scar on his arm. After a fruitless search in the city for Martha he returns home heartbroken and penniless. The next season the Rands and Andrews return to the summer hotel at Peaceful Valley. Martha also starts for home, but she hasn't the courage to face her mother and brother. She throws herself into a lily pond. Hosiah happens on the scene in the nick of time.

KEEP BLOOD IN FIGHTING TRIM

Thin-Blooded People Should Strengthen the Blood With a Good Tonic to Keep Off Contagious Disease.

TAKE GUDE'S PEPTO-MANGAN

If You Tire Easily and Feel Run Down, Your Blood Needs More Red Corpuscles. Watch Your Blood Condition Now.

It is thin-blooded, anaemic people that disease strikes first. If any of the disease germs that so often become epidemic catch you in a run-down condition, they are able to take hold—and the first thing you know you are ill. But if you are in good condition, your blood vigorous, rich and red, your system is able to throw off the effects of germs that are so prevalent when an epidemic breaks out.

Make up your mind to this fact—you are either well or you are not well. And the common-sense thing to do is to be on the safe side. If you are in doubt, take that wonderful blood tonic, Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It makes blood rich and red. It increases the number of red corpuscles, and your system is better able to fight the ravages of epidemics.

Watch your children. If they are pale and wan and thin-blooded, give them Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is put up in both liquid and tablet form and is sold by druggists everywhere. The liquid and tablets have exactly the same medicinal value. Buy whichever you prefer, and be sure it is genuine "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." The name "Gude's" is on the package.—Adv.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE LURE OF YOUTH"—A Metro picture featuring an all-star cast is being shown today and will also be the feature attraction tomorrow. The story, so grippingly human, has an irresistible appeal in the theme of the young man who comes to the city to find himself helpless and bruised in a hard sophisticated environment, where his dreams crumple as effectively as the moth's wings are singed in the luring but deadly flame. The story is from the powerful pen of the popular writer, Luther Reed, who also adapted it for the screen. "Lure of Youth" is worth seeing. It tells of Florentine Fair, a famous actress, who determines to renounce the man she loves and her career for the sake of preserving the illusions of young naive Roger Dent, her protege, who is about to have his first play produced on a Broadway stage. The young playwright furiously tears up his manuscript and returns to his little home town to vegetate, after suspecting the virtue of his patroness; but he is saved by the very man he had come to hate and who hated him as genuinely. This is a story where there is no villain, or where the villain, if such he can be called, quickly changes his life and cunningly molds the future of two other souls.

THE ORPHEUM.

"WHAT'S YOUR HURRY"—Another sizzling auto thriller, with Wallace Reid in the leading role, is the feature attraction today at this theatre and will also be presented tomorrow. The action centers around "Dusty" Rhoades, an auto racing driver in love with Virginia, daughter of Pat MacMurran, manufacturer of Pakro trucks. In an effort to win favor from the irascible Pat, "Dusty" abandons racing and becomes publicity man for Pakro trucks. But his well meant efforts only land him deeply into the bad graces of Pat, whose bad temper has been further aggravated by his own failure to secure an expected order for trucks from the Cabrillo Irrigation company. "Dusty's" opportunity comes when the Cabrillo company's dam starts to give way in a raging storm. He leads a fleet of Pakro trucks into the breach and not only saves the dam but also rescues Pat and Virginia from possible death.

Wallace Reid christened the new speedway near Los Angeles, which is proving such a boon to southern California speed merchants, Wallie was about to make the racing scenes for "What's Your Hurry?" at the speedway. Such noted racing drivers as Eddie Pullen, Eddie Hearne, Ralph de Palma, Ralph Mulford and Tommy Milton were in town for the races that were to open the speedway. They were all persuaded to drive a preliminary heat with Wallace Reid while the cameraman cranked out scenes for "What's Your Hurry?"

THE ARCADE.

All star revue here this week. The attraction at the Arcade this week is supposed to be one of the best traveling organizations on tour today. Morris Luther and his star Revue offer "Slattery's Reception," a musical farce that is a scream. Irish Billy Lewis, a former star from Jean Bedinis Puss company, is the principal comic and he is surrounded by a wonderful cast, including Morris Luther, Willard Dyer, Jack Webster, and the all star trio. Dancing Babe Kelly a real soubrette is featured in a dancing specialty. Miss Essie Calvert, the charming primadonna, promises some very good song numbers, with eight charming young women in the chorus, and special scenery, good wardrobe and extraordinary lighting effects. No doubt capacity houses will be the rule.

Crown Troops Make Reprisal.

WESTPORT, Ireland, March 28.—Pandemonium prevailed here today when crown forces engaged in reprisals for a recent ambush near here. There was continual gun fire in various parts of the town for several hours. Houses and shops were wrecked with bombs and furniture and other effects burned.

A Nation-wide Stage Success
Now a Charles Ray Triumph

"Mother—I lied to you"

Stone-cold, stone-broke, despairing, disillusioned, Hosiah Howe came back to the little home in Peaceful Valley. By day he had trudged the streets of sliding cities and by night he had scanned the misty figures in murky by-ways, peering hopefully into painted faces, searching for the little sister who thought she understood the world—the flesh—the devil!

Drama real, sheer drama! And on top of it comes a laugh that whips back the tears just in time.

HIGH SCHOOL CLOSES ITS SEASON WITH DECISIVE WIN OVER ELIZABETH QUINTET

Score is 17-17 After Unequal Battle Comes to Close.

CASEY PLAYS TONIGHT

Connellsville High brought its basketball season to a close Saturday night by an overwhelming victory over Elizabeth. When the final whistle blew the score was 47-17. It was a simple practice game for the Cokers and even to get 17 points required a continual uphill fight by the visitors.

The regular varsity, four members of which are seniors who played their last game for the Orange and Black, opened the fray. Determined to leave one last clean sheet after a season of some rocky periods the locals literally swept the Elizabethians from their feet. When the smoke cleared away at the end of the first period the score was 16-1. The end of the first half was marked by a 31-5 score.

The nucleus of the team for next year went in for the regulars in the third period and showed up well. The same smoothness of play was not so evident but each gave promise of developing by next season.

The crowd was larger last night. The fact that Driscoll, Seaton, Melnick and Francis were playing their last game for high school brought many out. The men all have their staunch supporters especially among the students and when they walked on the floor at the opening of the last period there was a resounding cheer.

The score:

| Connellsville—47. | | Elizabeth—17. |
|---|---|---|
| Driscoll | F | Linden |
| McCormick | F | Snowden |
| Seaton | C | Willard |
| Melnick | G | Mathie |
| Francis | G | Miller |

Substitutions—Soisson for McCormick, Harmon for Driscoll, Orlitsky for Melnick, Brown for Seaton, McCormick for Francis.

Field goals—Seaton 4, Melnick 4, Driscoll 4, Harmon 2, Snowden 3, McCormick 2, Willard 2, Soisson 2, Mathie.

Foul goals—Driscoll 6 out of 8, Soisson 3 out of 6, Willard 5 out of 17. Snowden missed 3.

Referee—Wall.

The season of basketball at the high school has come to a close with the Cokers winning side of the column slightly ahead of the number on the lost side. Regardless of the fact that Connellsville did not take any championship honors every fan who appreciates good fast basketball is satisfied with the season's showing.

The girls team also closed the season on Saturday defeating the Greensburg High girls in an afternoon game 22-19. The locals played through the entire year losing only three games.

* * * *

Some fast action will be seen on the Y floor Thursday night when a team composed of the high school varsity players will meet the Y. M. C. A. quintet. The advantage ought to be with the high school because of the short pass which has been developed among those players.

CASEY PLAYS ST. VINCENT TEAM HERE TONIGHT

The Casey Club will play St. Vincent's College at the parochial school hall tonight. The teams have met before this season and tonight's game will be the rubber for the best out of three.

Casey also has another game scheduled with the American Legion to be played on Friday evening at the armory. The Legion-Casey clash is sure to attract a big crowd.

HIGH SCHOOL RESERVES WIN PRELIMINARY GAME

The Connellsville high school reserves walloped the Dunbar Township reserves in a preliminary game here on Saturday night. The score was 26-8. The visitors got a single field goal, the other six points being made on fouls. The score:

| Connellsville—26. | | Dunbar Twp.—8. |
|---|---|---|
| Huey | F | Pliss |
| Henry | F | Davin |
| Tomaska | C | Mehallic |
| Dick | G | McLaughlin |
| Hoover | G | Millya |

Substitutions—Neid for Dick, Edmunds for Hoover, Bush for Henry.

Field goals—Tomaska, Huey, Henry, Dick, Hoover, Neid, Davin.

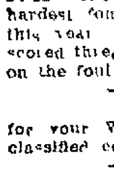

Foul goals—Huey 7 out of 10, Dick 3 out of 4, Mehallic 6 out of 9.

SOUTH SIDE PREPS LOSE TO ST. VINCENT'S JRS.

The St. Vincent's college juniors defeated the South Side Preps in a game at the armory on Saturday afternoon 24-22. The contest was one of the hardest fought junior games played this year. Tomaska and Neid each scored three goals and Donnadio was on the foul line for the Preps.

BOXER WHO CLINCHES IS CALLED COWARDLY

Referees Who Give Draw Decisions in Same Class.

There Is Winner to Every Contest and He Ought to Be Declared—Draw Is Not Fair to Fighters Nor to Spectators.

"The boxer who goes tearing into a clinch is a coward and a set of officials who are unable to find a winner after a lengthy contest show a weakness which should exclude them from the pastime," said Jack McAuliffe, retired lightweight champion, while fanning with a group of enthusiasts the other day.

"Just a lack of initiative. The proper sand is not there and they are just as cowardly as the fellow who does the clinching and grabbing in a contest.

"There is a winner in every contest. It does not make any difference how close it is, the winner is there and he ought to be declared. It is not fair to the boxers nor is it fair to the spectators when a draw decision is arrived at. It is all wrong.

"Take horse tracks, for instance, where during a season there are 1,000 or more races. How often do you hear of a dead heat? Quite often two horses may appear to be even at times, but the winner is there and the judges rarely have any difficulty in making the proper selection.

"Boxing referees should stand right in their judgment. Even if they err in their selection I think it is much better to have tried to do right. I realize that the officials here have a tough task on their hands in the bouts where local men are so prominent. I think it may be that some of our officials are swayed by the yelping, howling, the horn sports who shout their heads off for a boxer on whom they have risked a few measly dollars.

"It is not with any pleasure that I say this, but this is all true. But I am afraid some of our officials ... ... their beds at fault."

The Wreckers

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright by Chas. Scribner's Sons

Mr. Van Britt had come upstairs again, and he and the boss were both standing over Tarbell when the "G-S" break cleared the wire. Instantly there came a quick call, "G-S" "G-S" followed by the signature, "B-J" for Bauxite Junction. Tarbell answered, and then we all heard what Bauxite had to say:

"Pusher overtook Number Four three miles west of Sand Creek and has brought her back here. What orders for her?"

Somebody groaned, "Oh, thank God!" and Mr. Van Britt dropped into a chair as if he had been hit by a cannon ball. Only the boss kept his head calling out sharply to Disbrow to break off on the doctors' list and to hurry and stop Kirgan from getting away with the wrecking train.

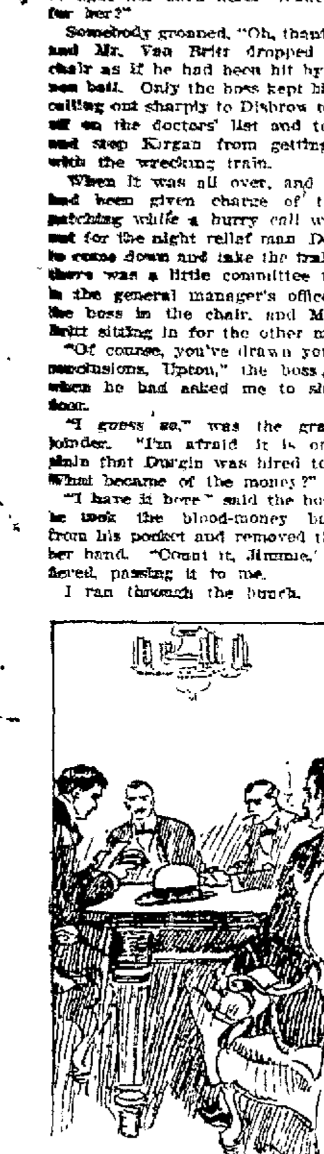

When it was all over, and Tarbell had been given charge of the dispatching while a hurry call was sent out for the night relief man Donahue to come down and take the train desk, there was a little committee meeting in the general manager's office, with the boss in the chair, and Mr. Van Britt sitting in for the other member.

"Of course, you've drawn your own conclusions, Upton," the boss began, when he had asked me to shut the door.

"I guess so," was the grave rejoinder. "I'm afraid it is only too plain that Durgin was hired to do it. What became of the money?"

"I have it here," said the boss, and he took the blood-money bank-roll from his pocket and removed the rubber band. "Count it, Jimmie," he ordered, passing it to me.

I ran through the bunch. It was in twenties and fifties, and there was an even thousand dollars.

There Was an Even Thousand Dollars.

"That is the price of a man's life," said Mr. Van Britt, soberly, and then Mr. Norcross said, "Who knows anything about Durgin? Was he a married man?"

Mr. Van Britt shook his head.

"He had been married, but he and his wife didn't live together. He had no relatives here. I knew him in the southwest two years ago. He'd had domestic trouble of some kind, and didn't mix or mingle much with the other men. But he was a good dispatcher and two months ago when we had an opening here, I sent for him."

"You think there is no doubt but that he was bribed to put those trains together tonight?"

"None in the least—only I wish we had a little better proof of it."

"Where did he live?"

"He boarded at Mrs. Chandler's out on Cross street. Morris boards there, too, I believe."

The boss turned to me.

"Jimmie, go and get Morris."

I carried the call and brought Morris back with me. He was a cheerful red-headed fellow and everybody liked him.

"It isn't a 'sweat box' session, Morris," said the boss, quietly, when we came in and the relief operator sat down, sort of half scared on the edge of a chair. "We want to know something more about Durgin. He roomed at your place, didn't he?"

Morris admitted it, but said he'd never been very chummy with the dispatcher; that Durgin wasn't chummy with anybody. Then the boss went straight to the point, as he usually did.

"You were present and saw all that happened in the other room. Can you tell us anything about that money?" pointing to the pile of bills on my desk.

Billy Morris wriggled himself into a little better chair-hold. "Nothing that would be worth telling, if things hadn't turned out just as they have," he returned. "But now I guess I know. I left Mrs. Chandler's this evening about eleven o'clock to come on duty, and Durgin was just ahead of me. Some fellow—a man in a snuff-colored overcoat and with a soft hat pulled down so that I couldn't see his face—stopped Durgin on the sidewalk, and they talked together.

"I didn't hear what was said, but I saw the overcoated man pass something to Durgin and saw Durgin put whatever it was into his pocket. Then the other man dodged and went away, and did it so quick that I didn't see which way he went or what became of him. Durgin must have run after he left the corner, for I didn't see anything more of him until I got to the office."

"He was there when you came in?" It was Mr. Norcross who wanted to know.

"Yes. He had his coat off and was at work on the train sheet. I don't think Durgin left his chair, or said anything to anybody until he jumped up and began to walk the floor, taking on and saying that he'd put Four and Five together on the single track."

There was silence for a little time, and when the boss said, "Do you think you would recognize the man in the snuff-colored overcoat if you should see him again?"

"Yes, I might, if he had on the same coat and hat."

"That will do then. Keep this thing to yourself, and if the newspaper people come after you, send them to Mr. Van Britt or to me."

After Morris had gone, Mr. Van Britt shook his head sort of savagely.

"It's h—l, Graham!" he ripped out, bouncing to his feet and beginning to tramp up and down the room. "To think that these devils would take the chance of murdering a lot of totally innocent people to gain their end! What are you going to do about it?"

"I don't know yet, Upton, but I am going to do something. This state of affairs can't go on. The simplest thing is for me to throw up the job and let the Short Line drop back into the old rut. I'm not sure that it wouldn't save a good many lives in the end if I should do it. And yet it seems such a cowardly thing to do—to resign under fire."

Mr. Van Britt had his hand on the door knob, and what he said made me warm to my finger tips.

"We're all standing by you, Graham; all, you understand—to the last man and the last ditch. And you're not going to pitch it up; you're going to stay until you have thrown the harpoon into these high-binders, clear up to the hitchings. That's my prophecy. The trouble's over for tonight, and you'd better go up to the hotel and turn in. There is another day coming, or if there isn't, it won't make any difference to any of us. Good night."

CHAPTER XIII

What the Pilot Engine Found

For a time after the suicide of the off-trick-dispatcher the wreck epidemic paused. Acting upon Mr. Norcross' suggestion Mr. Van Britt called his trainmen in, a crew at a time, and gave them the straight tip; and after that the hoodoo died a natural death, and a good many pairs of eyes all along the Short Line were keeping a sharp lookout for the trouble-makers.

In the meantime, Tarbell, still digging faithfully, managed to turn up a few facts that were worth something. In the Petrolite case he found a lone prospector living in a shack high up on the farther side of the canyon who told him that late in the evening of the day preceding the wreck he had seen two men climbing the slope from which the boulder had been dislodged, and that one of them was carrying a pick. Also further investigation seemed to prove that the rail which the blow of the rock was supposed to have knocked loose had been previously weakened either by drawing some of the spikes or by unscrewing the nuts on the bolts at the joints.

In another field and this time under Ripley's instructions, our ex-cowpunch had been able to set and bait a trap. By diligent search he had found the man Murphy, the Clanahan henchman, who under pressure, had given away the Timber Mountain plot which had climaxed in the kidnaping of the boss. This man had been deliberately shot in a barroom brawl and left for dead. But he had crawled away and had got out of town to live and recover at a distant cattle ranch in the Limberton hills.

When Tarbell discovered him he had cut out the booze, had grown a beard and was thirsting for vengeance. Tarbell brought him back to Portal City, and presently there began to be developments. Murphy knew all the ropes. In a little time, Ripley, with Tarbell's help, was loaded for bear. One chilly October afternoon the lawyer came down to our office to tell Mr. Norcross that the game was cornered.

"All you have to do now is to give the word," was the way Ripley wound up. "You refused to do it on a former occasion, because we couldn't get the men higher up. This time we can nail Clanahan, and a good few of the political gangsters and bosses in the other towns along the line. What do you say?"

The boss looked up with the little horse-shoe frown wrinkling between his eyes.

"Can we get Hatch and Henckel?"

"No; not yet."

"Very well, then you may lock those papers up in your safe and we'll wait. When you can see your way clear to a criminal trial, with Rufus Hatch and Gustave Henckel in the prisoner's dock, we'll start the legal machinery; but not before."

By now we were right on the eve of the state election. As far as anybody could see, the railroad had stayed free and clear of the political fight. The boss had kept his promise to maintain neutrality and was still keeping it.

At the appointed time the big day dawned, and the political wind-up held the center of the stage. So far as we were concerned it passed off very quietly. Along in the afternoon the newspaper offices began to put out bulletins, and by evening the result was no longer doubtful. For the first time in years the power of the political machine had been smashed decisively at the polls and on the following morning the Mountaineer announced the election of Governor Burrell, with a safe working majority in both houses of the legislature for the Independents.

It was on the third day after the election, rather late in the afternoon that the boss had a call from a mining promoter named Dawes, representing a bunch of mine owners at Strathcona who were having trouble with a smelter. The smelter, one of the few Hatch monopolies which hadn't been shaken loose as yet, was located in the gulch six miles below Strathcona and it was served exclusively by its own industrial railroad which it was using as a lever to pry an excessive hauling charge out of the mine owners. Wouldn't Mr. Norcross try to do something about it?

The boss said he'd do anything he could, and asked what the mine owners wanted. Dawes said they wanted help; that they were going to hold a mass meeting in Strathcona the following morning at nine o'clock. Would it, or wouldn't it, be possible for Mr. Norcross to be present at that meeting?

Of course the boss said he'd go. Dawes went away, and before we broke off to go to dinner at the railroad club, I was given a memorandum order for a special.

At the club I found that Mr. Norcross had an invited guest—Major Kendrick. For a week or two Mrs. Sheila had been visiting at the state capital, and the major's wife and Maisie Ann were with her. So the good old major was sort of unattached and glad enough, I took it, to be a guest at anybody's table.

For a while the table talk—in which, of course, Jimmie Dodds hadn't any part whatever—circled around the late landslide election, and what Governor Burrell's party would do now that it had the say so. But by and by it got around to the railroad situation.

"You're putting up a mighty good fight, Graham, my son, but it isn't over yet—not by a jugful, suh"—this isn't just the way the major said it but it's as near as I can come to his soft Southern drawl with the smoothered "r's." "I've known Mistoh Rufus Hatch for a good many yeahs, and he has the perseverance of the very devil. With all that has been done, you must never forget, for a single hou'ah, that youh admirable refo'm structchuh stands, as yet, upon the life of a single man. Don't lose sight of that, Graham."

The boss looked up kind of curiously.

"You and Sheila seem to think that point needs emphasizing more than any other," he commented.

The major's fine old eyes twinkled gravely.

"You are mighty safe in payin' strict attention to whatever the little gyerl tells you, Graham, my boy," he asserted. "She has a way of gettin' at the heart of things that puts us menfolks to shame—she has, for a fact, suh."

"She has been very helpful to me," the boss put in, with his eyes on his plate. "In fact, I may say that she has herself suggested a good many of the moves in the railroad game. It's marvelous, and I can't understand how she can do it."

They went on for a while singing Mrs. Sheila's praises over in a good many different ways, and I thought wherever she might happen to be just then, her pretty little ears ought to be burning good and hard. To hear them talk you would have thought she was another Portia person, and then some.

The dinner wore itself out after a while, and when the waiter brought the cigars the boss was looking at his watch.

"I'm sorry I can't stay and smoke with you, major," he said, pushing his chair back. "But the business grind never lets up. I'm obliged to go to Strathcona tonight."

I don't know what the major was going to say to this abrupt break-away; the after-dinner social cigar was a sort of religious ceremony with him. But whatever he was going to say, he didn't say it, for at that moment a telegraph boy came in and handed him a message. He put on his other glasses and read the telegram with his big goatee looking more than ever like a dagger and the fierce white mustaches twitching. At the end of things he folded the message and put it into his pocket, saying sort of soberly:

"Graham, there are times when Sheila's intuiferences are mighty

"Sheila's Intuiferences Are Mighty Neah Uncanny."

neah uncanny; they are, for a fact, suh. This wire is from her. What do you suppose it says?"

Of course the boss said he couldn't suppose anything about it, and the major went on.

"She tells me in just seven words not to let you go to Strathcona tonight. Now what do you make of that? How on top of God's green earth did she know, away off yonder at the capital, that you were meaning to go to Strathcona tonight?"

Mr. Norcross shook his head. Then he said: "There are [illegible] though I don't know who any body should telegraph her to [illegible] capital that I expect to attend a mine owners' meeting tomorrow morning [illegible] the big gold [illegible] going, you know."

"But it's warning," the major insisted. "There's [illegible] Graham, as sure as you are [illegible]."

Again the boss shook his head.

"Between you and me [illegible] I'm due to acquire a [illegible] of nerve. I don't know what she has heard [illegible] disappointment. She has [illegible] heard [illegible] of the threats that are constantly being [illegible] Hatch [illegible] sympathies. It's [illegible] of the election, but [illegible] down and out and they [illegible] nerve to strike back now."

That ended it [illegible] the boss and I walked [illegible] to the headquarters. The special with Buck Chandler was waiting [illegible] minute I thought I wasn't going to get to go.

"There's no need of your getting [illegible] a night on the road, Jimmie," said the boss with the kindly [illegible] other people's comfort but never failed him. But after I had begged a little, telling him that he'd need somebody to take notes in the mine meeting, he said, "All right," and we got aboard and gave the word to Maclise, the conductor, to get his [illegible] and go.

A few minutes later we pulled out and the night run was begun. Like every other car the boss had ever owned the '03 was fitted up as a working office and since he had to [illegible] along he opened up a lot of claim papers upon which the legal department was giving him the final say, and we went to work.

For the next two hours I was so busy that I didn't know when we passed the various stations. At half past nine Mr. Norcross snapped a rubber band over the last of the claim files, lighted a pipe, and told me I might go to bed if I wanted to, said that he was going himself after he'd had a smoke. Just then Chandler whistled for a station, and looking out of a window I saw that we were pulling into Bauxite, the little wind-blown junction from which the Strathcona branch led away into the northern mountains.

Wanting a bite of fresh air before turning in I got off when we made the stop and strolled up to the engine. Maclise was in the office, getting orders for the branch, and Chandler was squatting in the gangway of the 815 and waiting. Up ahead of us, and too far away for me to read the number on her tender, there was a light engine. I thought at first it was the pusher which was kept at Bauxite to help heavy freights up the branch grades and I wondered what it was doing out on the branch ahead in our way.

"What's the pusher out for, Buck?" I asked.

Chandler grinned down at me.

"You ain't so much of a railroad man as you might be, I reckon," he said. "That ain't the pusher. It's our first section, runnin' light to Strathcona."

Maybe Chandler was right that I wasn't much of a railroad man, but I savvied the Short Line operating rules well enough to know that it wasn't [illegible] an engine deadheading [illegible] a section of a special. Also, I knew that Buck knew it.

Well, that last little talk over the dinner table fresh in mind, I began to wonder, but instead of asking Chandler any more questions about the engine out ahead I asked him if I might ride a piece with him up the branch, and when he said "Sure," I climbed up and humped myself on the fireman's box.

Maclise [illegible] his orders in due time [illegible] held out. I noticed that [illegible] gave Chandler the word he [illegible] with his lantern [illegible] up ahead and it promptly [illegible] speeding up until it [illegible] half-mile lead and then [illegible] the second [illegible] too. [illegible] that it often [illegible] the different [illegible] train are supposed to [illegible] minutes apart and [illegible] more than a [illegible] away from us at any time.

Another thing that struck me as being [illegible] was Chandler was [illegible] was only sixty mountain [illegible] the branch to the big gold [illegible] ought to have been [illegible] by one o'clock taking [illegible] But the way Buck was [illegible] as if it might [illegible] all night.

[illegible] the same thing happened. The [illegible] miles [illegible] across a desert [illegible] slightly rising [illegible] and it was pretty much all [illegible] straight line. Beyond the [illegible] of Nippo we hit the [illegible] proper climbing it through [illegible] with curves that blocked [illegible] fifty feet ahead of the [illegible] grades that would have [illegible] loggan sides. The [illegible] the canyon shadows [illegible] to shut us in.

On the reverse curves I could [illegible] get a glimpse of the red [illegible] of the engine which ought [illegible] to have been five full minutes ahead of us. It was still holding [illegible] jogging along as [illegible] as we were.

With nothing to do and not much to [illegible] I got sleepy after a while and about the time when I was thinking that I might as well climb back over the tender and turn in I dozed off right here on the fireman's box—which was safe enough at the snail's pace we were climbing. When I awoke it was nearly one o'clock in the morning, and we had worried through the thirty miles of canyon run and were climbing the steep talus of Slide mountain.

We Went to Meet the Man With the Lantern.

While I was rubbing my eyes, the eight-wheeler gave another little jerk and I saw that Chandler was slowing for a stop; saw this and got a glimpse of somebody on the track ahead, flagging us down with a lantern.

A minute later the brakes had been set and Buck and I were off. As we swung down from the engine step, Maclise joined us, and we went to meet the man with the lantern. He was the fireman of the engine ahead, and when we got around on the track I saw that our "first section" was stopped just a little way farther on.

"What is it, Barty?" said Maclise, when we came up to the fireman.

"It's them h—l-fired wreckers again," was the gritting reply. "Rail joint disconnected and sprung out so's to let us off down the mountain."

I thought it was up to me to go back and tell the boss, but there wasn't any need of it. The stop or the slow running or something had roused him, and he was up and dressed and coming along beside the engine. When he came up, Maclise told him why we were stopping. He didn't say anything about the rail break, but he did ask, sort of sharp and quick, what engine that was up ahead.

I don't know what Maclise told him. Chandler turned to go back to his engine, and the rest of us were moving along the other way, the boss setting the pace with Maclise at his elbow. Three rail-lengths ahead of the stopped light engine we came to the break. The head engineer and another man were down on their hands and knees examining it and when they stood up at our coming, I saw that the other man was Mr. Van Britt.

"What?" said the boss; "you here?"

Our only millionaire nodded. "I ride the line once in a while—just to see how things are going," he returned crisply.

The boss didn't say anything more, but he knelt to look at the break. It was a trap, all right, set, beyond all question of doubt, to catch the private-car special. The fish-plates had been removed from a joint in the left-hand rail and the end of the down-hill rail had been sprung out to make a derailing switch, which was held in position by the insertion of one of the fish-plates between the rail webs. If we had hit the trap going at even ordinary mountain climbing speed there would have been nothing left to tell the tale but a heap of scrap at the bottom of the thousand-foot dump.

Under Mr. Van Britt's directions the engineer and fireman of the pilot engine brought tools and the break was repaired.

While they were doing it the boss stood aside with Mr. Van Britt, and I heard what was said. Mr. Van Britt began it by saying, "We don't need any detectives this time. You are on your way to Strathcona to put a crimp in the smelter squeeze—the last of the Red Tower monopolies—so Dawes told me. He was probably foolish enough to tell others and the word was passed to scrag you before you could get to it. This trap was set to catch your special."

"Evidently," barked the boss; and then: "How did you happen to be here on that engine, Upton?"

"I've been ahead of you all the way up from Portal City," was the calm reply. "I thought it might be safer if you had a pilot to show you the way. I guess I must have had a hunch."

The boss turned on him like a flash.

"You had something more than a hunch; what was it—a wire?"

Mr. Van Britt gritted his teeth a little, but he told the truth.

"Yes, a friend of ours tipped me off—not about the broken track, of course, but just in a general way."

The break was repaired and the men were taking the tools back to the engine. As we turned to follow them Mr. Norcross said: "Just one more question, Upton. Did your wire come from the capital?"

But at this Mr. Van Britt seemed to forget that he was talking to his general manager.

"It's none of your d—d business where it came from!" he snapped back; and that ended it.

Notwithstanding the slow run and the near-disaster on Slide mountain, we had our meeting with the Strathcona mine owners the following morning, and that much of the special train trip served its purpose anyway. The boss met the miners a good bit more than half-way, and gave them their relief—and the Hatch-owned smelter its knock-out—by promising that our traffic department would make an ore tariff to the independent smelter on the other side of the range low enough to protect the producers.

It was nearly three o'clock in the afternoon before we got away for the return to Portal City.

We had seen nothing of Mr. Van Britt during the day, and I supposed when we came to start [illegible] maybe he had gone back to Portal City on the regular train. But at the station I saw the pilot engine just ahead of us again, and though I couldn't be quite sure, I thought I caught a glimpse of our athletic little general superintendent on the fireman's box.

The boss was pretty quiet all the way on the run down the mountain to Bauxite, and, for a wonder, he didn't pitch into the work at the desk. I could tell pretty well what he was thinking about. For six months he had been working like a horse to pull the Short Line out of the mudhole of contempt and hostility into which a more or less justly aroused public enmity had dumped it; and now, just as he was beginning to get it up over the edge, he had been plainly notified that he was going to be killed if he didn't let go.

Just as the way seemed to be opening out to better things for the Short Line, a mis-set switch or a bullet in the dark would knock the entire hard-built reform experiment into a cocked hat.

There was every reason, now, to hope that the experiment was going to be a success, at least, at our end of it, if it could go on just a little farther. Slowly but surely the new policy was winning its way with the public. Traffic was booming, and almost from the first the Interstate Commerce inspectors had let us alone, just as the police will let a man alone where there is reason to believe that he has taken a brace and is trying his best to walk straight.

Also, for the drastic interstate regulations—the laws about headlights, and safety devices, and grade crossings and full crews, and the making of reports to this, that, and the other state official; laws which, if enforced to the letter would have left the railroad management with little to do but to pay the bills; for these something better was to be substituted. We had Governor-elect Burrell's assurance for this. He had met the boss in the lobby of the Hullard the day after the election, and I had heard him say:

"You have kept your promise, Norcross. For the first time in its history your railroad has let a state campaign take its course without bullying, bribery, or underhanded corruption. You'll get your reward. We are going to have new laws, and a Railroad Commission with authority to act both ways—for the people when it's needed, and for the carriers when they need it. If you can show that the present laws are unjust to your earning powers you'll get relief and the people of this commonwealth will cheerfully pay the bills."

Past all this, though, and even past the murderous machinations of the disappointed grafters, there was the old sore: the original barrier that no amount of internal reform could break down. There could be no permanent prosperity for the Short Line while its majority stock was controlled by men who cared absolutely nothing for the property as a working factor in the life and activities of the region it served.

That was the way Mrs. Sheila had put it to the boss one evening along in the summer when they were sitting out on the Kendricks' porch, and I had butted in, as usual with a bunch of telegrams that didn't matter. She had said that the experiment couldn't be a success unless the conditions could be changed in some way; that so long as the railroads were owned or controlled by men of the Mr. Dunton sort and used as counters in the money-making game, there would never be any real peace between the companies and the people at large.

It was at Bauxite Junction that we picked up Mr. Hornack. I was glad when I saw him come in. I had just been thinking that it wasn't healthy for the boss to be grilling there at the window so long alone and I knew Mr. Hornack would keep him talking about something or other all the rest of the way in.

For a little while they talked business. By and by the business talk wound itself up and I heard Mr. Hornack say: "I saw Ripley going in on

"Mrs. Macrae Isn't a Widow At All."

Number Six this morning, and he had company: Mrs. Macrae, and the major's wife, and the missy little-girl cousin. They've been visiting at the capital, so they told me, and I expect the major will be mighty glad to see them back."

I didn't hear what Mr. Norcross said, if he said anything at all, but if I had been stone deaf I think I should have heard the thing that Mr. Hornack said when he went on.

"I heard something the other day in Portal City that seems pretty hard to believe, Norcross. It was at one of Mrs. Stagford's 'evenings' and I was sitting out a dance with a certain young woman who shall be nameless. We were speaking of the Kendricks, and she gave me a rather broad hint that Mrs. Macrae isn't a widow at all; that her husband is still living."

My heavens, I had figured out a thousand ways in which the boss might get wised up to the dreadful truth, but never anything like this; to have it dropped on him that way out of a clear sky!

For a minute or two he didn't say anything, but when he did speak I saw that the truth wasn't going to take hold.

TO BE CONTINUED.

What Every American Should Know About His Country and Its History

Lincoln's Farewell Address to His Neighbors at the Station Upon His Departure for Washington

THE country was pleased with the statement made by Senator Harding upon receipt of the news that he was overwhelmingly elected to the Presidency. He said: "I am happy to utter my gratitude. But I am not exultant. It is not a personal victory. It is all so serious, the obligations are so solemn that instead of exulting I am more given to prayer to God to make me capable of paying my part and that all these calls of responsibility may meet the aspirations and expectations of America and the world."

This statement recalls the farewell speech made by Lincoln to his neighbors at the time of his departure for Washington. Mr. Lincoln and his party were to leave Springfield by a special train at eight o'clock on Monday morning, February 11, and at precisely five minutes before eight o'clock he was summoned from the bare waiting room of the station. Slowly making his way through the crowd of friends and townspeople that had gathered to bid him goodbye, he mounted the platform of the car, and turning stood looking down into the multitude of sad friendly upturned faces. For a moment a strong emotion shook him, then removing his hat and lifting his hand to command silence he spoke:

"My friends, no one not in my position can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place and the kindness of these people I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century and have passed from a young man to an old man. Here my children have been born and one is buried. I now leave not knowing when or whether ever I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him I cannot succeed. With that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me and remain with you and be everywhere for good let us confidently hope that all will yet be well. To His care commending you as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell."

AARON COMPANY THIRTY YEARS IN BUSINESS HERE

Ever-Increasing Sales Over Larger Area Marks Progress of Furniture House.

OUTFITTED 10,000 HOMES

Remarkable Growth Attributed by Head of Concern to Truthful Advertising and Fair Dealing With Public; Fifth Big Store to be Erected

In the present Odd Fellows building on Crawford avenue 30 years ago the Aaron Furniture company started on its successful business career in Connellsville.

From a very small and humble beginning in 1891 this business was firmly established and conducted along the line of strictest honesty and fair dealings. That this sound business policy gained and held public confidence from the start is best evidenced by the constant and steady growth of this institution.

The ever-increasing business made new demands for space so that the Aaron company outgrew its quarters from time to time until in 1906 this concern built its own building to adequately take care of these increased space demands. The present building on North Pittsburg and Apple streets consists of six floors and basement and comprises over an acre of floor space. It is entirely occupied by the Aaron company which now ranks among the largest exclusive house furnishing establishments in the state.

Aaron's also enjoys the distinction of being the oldest local concern and one of the oldest furniture stores in Southwestern Pennsylvania. Another significant factor is the fact that during all of these years this business has been in the same hands and management. I. Aaron the founder is president of the present organization and Meyer Aaron is secretary and treasurer.

It has been estimated that during this 30 year period the Aaron organization has furnished about 10,000 homes and is today furnishing the homes of the children whose parents looked to Aaron's for their home comforts many years ago.

When asked to what he attributed the constant and steady success of this business, Mr Aaron modestly replied that truthful advertising, quality and value-giving were perhaps the largest single factors. In this connection it might well be mentioned that Mr Aaron is a strong believer in newspaper advertising of which he has always been a liberal user.

Then too, it has always been the policy of this organization never to promise more than can be fulfilled but rather to do a little more than promised, to accord every customer a helpful courteous service to offer reliable lines of furniture rugs carpets stoves and housefurnishings of the best quality only at prices that are the lowest consistent with this quality and to guarantee complete satisfaction with every purchase. And it was in appreciation of these policies that Fayette county folks supported this institution and made possible its steady growth.

The generous response accorded the Aaron policy and business methods in Connellsville prompted the establishment of three additional stores. The Greensburg store was established in 1911, the Jeannette store in 1914 and the South Brownsville store in 1915. The combination of these four large stores gives Aaron's a buying power that is in excess of a million dollars enabling them to command the lowest possible prices from the manufacturers and which has been a very competent and [illegible] combatting high prices.

Another step in the steady development and expansion of this progressive concern was the purchase of one of the finest business locations in Uniontown a little over a year ago. Plans and preparations for an elaborate eight-story building have already been completed and the near future will undoubtedly witness the erection of the fifth Aaron furniture store which is destined to be one of the finest stores erected in this section of the country.

Mrs. Robert O. Reynolds

"I have actually gained 20 pounds and I just think Tanlac is the grandest medicine in the world," said Mrs Robert O Reynolds 12[illegible] North Denver street, Kansas City Mo.

"For 10 long years I suffered from a very bad form of rheumatism stomach and nervous troubles. My appetite was very poor. What little I did eat soured on my stomach and I suffered the most severe pains in my back hips and shoulders. My rheumatism was so bad that I could not raise my hands to comb my hair and my arms hurt me to my finger tips. I became so weak and run down that I lost all my energy and life had become almost a burden. I tried many things but nothing helped me.

"I had only taken my first bottle of Tanlac when I noticed my appetite was improving and I could sleep better at night. I have taken three bottles and the way it has helped me and built me up is really astonishing. I can eat anything and everything without the slightest disagreeable after effects. I sleep just fine at night and am in better health than I have been for years. I am glad to give this statement hoping that any who are suffering as I did may experience the same wonderful results which I believe they will if they give Tanlac a fair trial."

Exchange Rates Have Much to Do With New Development.

THEY USED TO GO TO LONDON

Find That American Dollar Goes Further Than Nominal British Equivalent—Dominion Tariff Fosters American Branch Factories—Hundreds Have Sprung Up Since Customs Duties Changed—Americans Already Have a Billion Dollars Invested in Canada

A recent feature of Canadian American relations which has not aroused much comment but which may have far reaching influence is the reaching out of American investors to take mortgages on Canada and the completeness of Canadians in giving the mortgage. More than two-thirds of the bond borrowings by Canadians last year were placed in the United States says a Toronto dispatch to the New York World. The remainder of the capital was supplied by Canadians themselves.

Not the Whole Story

The amounts are substantial. Total bond issues for railways, provincial public service corporations, private industry and municipal and provincial governments were $315,892,000 of which United States investors took $214,177,000. These figures impressive though they are fail to tell the whole story of the movement of American capital into Canada.

The situation that is being created is entirely new and is a result to a large extent of post war conditions. As recently as 1910 the United States took only 1½ per cent of Canada's bond issue and before 1914 never bought more than 30 per cent. In those pre-war days Great Britain was the great source of Canadian capital. As the war progressed outside capital was shut off and for a time Canada became almost self-contained. Now that borrowing has been resumed it is to New York and not to London that arrangements are being made.

Exchange rates have much to do with this new development. When the British pound is worth only $4 in Canada and an American dollar is worth $1.16 we get in round figures the following results: $500 in New York money will buy Canadian bonds with a face value of $575 but $100 in London money will buy Canadian bonds of a face value of little more than $400. If by the time the bonds mature exchange returns to normal the New York investor would gain $75 and the London investor would lose a like amount on the $500 investment. Therefore it is not surprising that the supply of British capital is being cut off.

British Capital Vanishing

What is happening in fresh issues in the bond market where [illegible] are [illegible] capital or semi-public character is happening also in [illegible] more private transactions. There has been [illegible] last year or two [illegible] [illegible] within view of British capital from Canada.

[illegible] a case in point. A Scottish [illegible] held a mortgage for $20,000 on a manufacturer's warehouse in Montreal. It happened to fall due this month. Under ordinary circumstances it would have been renewed with an adjustment if necessary of the rate of interest. But by demanding that the mortgage be paid off now the Scottish company obtains a premium of 10 or 15 per cent in British money. And such a demand is being naturally made. If the Montreal manufacturer cannot raise the $200,000 locally he goes to New York for it.

The same kind of thing is happening all over the country. One of the reasons given for the collapse or at least postponement in Grant Morden's big steel and ship merger was that the British investors in the enterprise would have lost $5,000,000 in exchange by sending money to Canada at the present time.

Another factor that is helping the movement along is the familiarity of American investors with Canadian conditions and their obvious confidence in them.

The Daughters of the Empire are waging an energetic warfare against the showing of American picture films in Canada and in favor of the importing of the British product. They are [illegible] only one of the most superficial of the manifestations of American [illegible]. If they want to get at the real problem they will [illegible] the infiltration of American capital into Canadian industry as seen in the purchasing of Canadian securities outlined in the foregoing, and in the establishing of branch factories of American industries.

Protection Evaded

Protectionist politicians for 10 years in Canada have urged the necessity of keeping out American imports. Canadian industry for the Canadian people. [illegible] Canadians [illegible] have been some [illegible] to which the argument lent itself. Sometimes protectionists were asked if they would object if American factories barred by the tariff would establish branches in Canada. Their reply invariably was no. They would welcome them for they would [illegible] help build up Canadian industry.

[illegible] however if any one foresaw the extent to which branch factories would be established when Canada's development got well under way. The tariff commission sitting recently in Montreal found 70 branch factories where there were four in 1900. In Toronto Hamilton Windsor and other Ontario cities they found literally hundreds of American concerns attracted by the protection of the Canadian tariff. Ireland has its absentee landlords but is Canada to have its absentee profiteers?

Americans already have a billion dollars invested in Canada according to an estimate made by the Bankers Trust company of New York and judging from last year's experience the amount is increasing by leaps and bounds. Interest and profits on this investment add substantially to the invisible adverse balance which unfortunately has to be added to the balance in trade returns already adverse to Canada.

Having [illegible] the real American invasion of Canada. It is not causing any serious alarm although nervous minded persons are making goblins of much less substantial shadows. The country is however being strenuously urged to cease borrowing abroad either in the United States or elsewhere, but to supply its own capital, a task which savings bank deposits indicate it is capable of doing. It is being even more strenuously urged to cease buying abroad particularly from the United States.

HUGE MARINE MONSTER FOUND ON FLORIDA COAST

Leviathan Has Skull Weighing Tons and Tons—Believed to Be a Giant Squid.

Miami, Fla.—Fishing was much wrought up over the discovery off Soldiers key of a huge marine monster which is believed to have come up from the depths of the gulf stream and drifted into the shallow water north of the key. It was discovered dead by Elmer L Garretson of Miami.

A fragment of the leviathan's skull weighing three tons and measuring 10 feet in length and 7 feet across was brought to Miami by Mr Garretson and Capt Charles Miller in tow of the yacht Corsair. Ten men with heavy lifting devices were required to pull this bone out [illegible].

Hundreds visited the dock but none could name the creature and Garretson was unable to name its genus and species. He is inclined to the opinion that it is a giant squid for the only bone he could find was the skull.

Garretson declared when he first saw the monster it was surrounded by great sharks which were devouring the flesh. He didn't know how long it was as he saw only about eighty or ninety feet of it with the head protruding six or eight feet above the water.

An examination indicated the body was composed of cartilage with sinews as large as a man's arm connecting the parts to the skull.

Garretson with the aid of the yacht pulled the head from the body and in doing so broke the skull. He is confident there is another piece of the skull as large as the fragment he brought to Miami. He intends going down to Soldiers key with a party to make a further search.

Garretson said this creature seemed to be large enough to swallow whole the fish Capt Charles H Thompson [illegible] of Miami and which for years has been described as the largest fish in the world. This fish was 45 feet long and weighed 30,000 pounds.

VOLCANO OVERFLOWS RIM

Kilauea, in Hawaii Bursts Into Fresh Activity

Kilauea the great active volcano, 32 miles from Hilo Hawaii which for the last two years has been swelling tremendous volcanic force recently overflowed the rim of its pit at [illegible] and burst forth in fresh activity and brilliance.

Following weeks of steady rising of the lava in the pit of Halemaumau the House of Fire the molten column reached the rim and poured over it toward the southeast side of the great crater while simultaneously another lava stream burst through the crater floor some distance from the first.

Hundreds of fire fountains began playing on the numerous lava lakes and sheets of flame gushed intermittently from beneath the crust surface. Along the main line of the [illegible] rift which the new flow is following several lava cones of small size have formed and these add to the weird scene with their thundering blasts of steam and fire.

VISION LED TO ACQUITTAL

Prisoner Appeared to Jury's Minister-Foreman In Halo of Light

A jury in Circuit court in Kansas City, Mo prayed and then returned a verdict acquitting W V Spencer of a charge of murder. Spencer killed Elmer Pendill during a fight in a rooming house. His plea was self defense.

Later the foreman of the jury, T H Poulkes an ordained minister explained that as he prayed the principals of the killing appeared before him in a vision. Spencer he said was surrounded with a halo of light while Pendill appeared in darkness.

Then it was I decided darkness was not for truth said Foulkes.
